A famous person once said, 'Expose yourself to your deepest fear; after that, fear has no power.' How important is it for us to acknowledge the challenges we face and find solutions to tackle them? Write an article explaining your opinion with relevant examples from your personal experience.

Good use of framework + kudos to your creativity! We have a very witty 1st paragraph here

Do you ever find yourself running away from your 'nightmares' which have caused you phobia, fear and anxiety? If you have fear of little creatures like insects, mosquitos, cockroaches, my recommendation for you is to join an outdoor overnight camp where the campsites will certainly feature tons of those tiny enemies. Ridiculous as it may sound, that is no doubt the most straightforward panacea to the problem. Spending nights with those scary tiny creatures, you will never have your heart shaken again when a cockroach appears on your desk. When you had already conquered a fierce tiger, why fear a small kitten? It is indispensable to recognise your fear and find the right path to vanquish it. In the following, I will be sharing with you all my own experience which made me a better me.

First and foremost, fear can not only take control of your mental status but it can also unceasingly act as an obstacle which hinders yourself from enhancing in different aspects, so it is highly crucial for us to acknowledge it and then tackle it. If you refuse to acknowledge that your phobia is haunting you, the chances are that you will be experiencing the same ordeal over and over again. I used to be terrified of speaking in front of others. Engrossing in a group discussion, the pressure my groupmates gave me when asking me opinions was an exceptionally scary experience. Even when I was badly trumbled by the class materials, the phobia had my shaky and sweaty hands stuck on the table rather than giving me the consent to raise them up in order to ask the instructor for help. Sad as it was, I failed to catch up the progress and be in pace with others in many subjects for the entire school year. Indeed, fear can manipulate our lives; fear can limit our performance; fear can also cause numerous hardships in different areas. Clearly as it is, we must iron out our fear and anxiety to prevent ourselves from being a prisoner throughout our life.

Descriptive and vivid. SPs were used very well and smartly

After acknowledging our deepest fear, we must take our first requisite step to untangle it – we must do that no matter how insurmountable it is. In other words, actions must be taken right now. Throwback to the time when I clearly identified that it was a challenge I could not evade anymore, I decided to deal with it properly, step by step. While my heart was pounding fiercely and hammering against my ribcage, I decided to cast my anxiety aside and took the first step. I started by sharing my thoughts with my close friends; sharing with them the fun things that happened daily; discussing various project topics together. With time slowly passing by, I was able to summon my courage in socializing with others more and more easily. Easy as it sounded like, I soon started joining different social events, meeting new friends, and voicing my opinions even among people whom I was not familiar with. As the old French saying goes: Once you take your first step againsting your fear, it becomes weaker and weaker while you become stronger and stronger. If you do not face your fear directly, you will just keep falling to the darkest unknown where hope is absent and have no way out to reach the light. In short, exposing yourself to your worst agony is always the right way to toughen up.

Clearly the strongest paragraph. Everything was done perfectly here. It was descriptive & sophisticated here

Ok, good. Managed to save time by using some template SP (the quotation skill can make life a lot easier). Since you had used it correctly, I'd say pls go ahead in other assignments & tests

Moreover, being able to overcome your fear in a particular area does not only mean that you have successfully gotten rid of it but it also indicates that you possess the ability of finding the antidote to deal with depraved situations. Overcoming different fears in our lives, we are not only given chances to learn from them but it also provides an opportunity to understand our true self and things in the world more. When I was a kid, I used to be afraid of having my feet stepped on places other than my home. Nonetheless, after exposing more to the outside world, I found it differs from the way I thought it does. As a renowned mid-century businessman said, 'Fear does not exist until you make it up. And so fear does not exist after you face it.' As we can see, nothing is more important than facing our own fear.

In general, there is unanimous consensus that escaping from your fear does no good but harm. Lastly, remember, if you face it, you break it.

A famous person once said, 'Expose yourself to your deepest fear, after that, fear has no power'. How important is it for us to acknowledge the challenges we face and find solutions to tackle them? Write an article explaining your opinion with relevant examples from your personal experience.

Fear Never Incapacitate You

Have you ever faced fears? Fear is deeply hidden under the sea of unknowns, and only develops when you fall into them in an inexorably annoying way. Terrifying as it is, you have to struggle all the way and not let go of evolution. What nutrients can you get if you imprison yourself in a 'safe zone'? Indispensably, taking part in facing your fears gives you a dose of fertilizer, absorbing what you faced in ordeals, and further dominating them like an incredibly tall tree in piles of mysterious forest. Somehow my personal experiences may become a must for you to use as references.

Extremely good framework usage!

To start with, fear takes all the opportunities again. In order to stop this, we have to tackle it by facing it directly. The more you face the fear, the more you will do the knockback to the fear. The foresee pathways will reappear under the transient of undiscovered myths. Not hard to tell, I used to have some talk when I was elected as a representative speaker from my school in an inter-school activity. The vigorous shaking of my hands, my lips are frozen which stick together. Fear inhibits your growth and learning opportunities, your ambition, you may never speak out what you have prepared for. I feared making mistakes, which this fear glued my lips, I literally became unspeakable. The hall is in absolute silence, I was forced to open my mouth in the 'dead-end'. So, I start to face it on my own. My pathways begin to appear that I made my first trace. At least, being brave didn't make me awkward that much, like standing in the crossroad before clouds of mists.

Your descriptive elements here were very well utilized! Also, I like how you injected your 'emotions' here, which makes this paragraph more engaging to readers

Requisite to stop making you a coward.

Never can it turn the fear into something that is surmountable by stepping out of your safe zone only. You must admit your stepping blocks, or your hindrance with a clear enough acknowledgement. I recognized my obstacle here – lacking braveness. It is requisite to find your hindered hurdles. Take an example in a more basic and daily-life-like way. I clearly know and admit the weakness in acquiring comprehensive analytical skills in Language subjects, never did I trample back to my prison since it is awkward and reckless by my means, so I was endeavoring in scanning the passages or books in an optimistic way. As a result, I got a satisfactory grade. What provides you if you just head into the fear without admitting what you did wrong? If I am pessimistically facing it, will there be any motivation for me to move mid-way? Never a racer drives their cars without looking forward. As I mentioned, I have recognized and admitted my problem – lacking confidence, but not other factors like insufficient preparation. After such a catastrophic speech, I decided to make some friendships but not only talk to acquaintances, decisively. It is hard to accept failure in having huge confidence. I stepped on the stairs, and my plumule started to develop. If you never accept the shadow behind you, you will be in the midst of uneliminated panics. You face it, you grow; You quit, you constrict. You are excelling yourself always when you admit the fear.

This is your strongest paragraph because you did use the skills correctly: SP, framework, HF expressions, descriptive terms and your tone & register were very accurate too!

Well, maybe talking in a scientific way, facing fears can enhance your psychological quality in facing all other difficulties, varies from reducing depression, anxiety, to construction of confidence, like what I mentioned above. You never have to find ways to evacuate from your opponents. Why don't give a shot to walk against it as accepting it makes you firm from them. Fear or shadows are inevitable, you never can escape. Nevertheless, you must suffer the tough time, you can embrace the happiness and relaxation after conquering them. You no longer need to hide from them, your fear. You are now growing in a charming and chill enough atmosphere. This further can consolidate your personalities – including being cheerful. You are more streamlined in swimming against the antithetical rivers, as you gain thousands of confidences from past experiences. Such a chill atmosphere encourages other people also, and at final state, after the outbreaks of joys, there will be a satisfactory happy index among communities.

A wise man once said, 'Never be afraid of opportunities for growth.' Fears are always antithetical to all of us. Still, it is not that hard to conquer. When you face it bravely, it will be a valediction for the fear eternally. A bad thing for thousands of good one, isn't it worthy enough?

Risky as it may look, it is essential for you to take your own venture to hop over these easy-peasy tasks. ✓

Question:

[REDACTED]

Asian singers and movie stars are gaining popularity all over the world and are no longer appealing only to Asian audiences. Write an article for the school newspaper explaining why Asian stars are gaining popularity in Western nations. Give title to your article.

Eastern stars are shining in the West

It isn't mainstream yet, but Asia seems to be slowly nipping at the heels of the West as the world's cultural epicentre. Different sub-cultures in the Western world, have been spreading across the universe like burning fire recently. However, when we look back to a century ago, western people were still looking for the latest Western movies or dramas. How does the world change? How rapidly does the trend of Asian dramas and movies grow?

Good use of framework + very creative with some expressions too!

One of the most apparent drivers behind the rise of Asian pop culture in Western countries is definitely globalisation. Cultures are passed from countries to countries. Apparently, Asian singers are gaining popularity around the globe and their appeal is no longer limited to Asian audiences only. Singers apart, movie stars are also gaining a place in the Western countries--Jackie Chan, Bruce Lee, Li Gong, and Jet Li to name but a few. Besides, there are some new styles of shows or movies that have been feeding the Westerns' tastes. Technology advancement nowadays is also responsible for giving a push to the trend of Asian shows and films. Websites like YouTube, Facebook and Instagram provide platforms for omnipresent Asian cultures content to be publicised, as well as encouraging people to engage in cultural exchanges. We can

Good Sp, good example framework - also it's good that you managed to use real-life examples! That will create a strong resonance with the markers.

✓ see dozens of Korean loving dramas popping up in YouTube – with more than 1.5 million YouTube hits and counting; be it Business Proposal or Extraordinary Attorney ✓

✓ Woo. People from the West have a great inclination for the cultures in Asia. With more people showing interest in Asia filming cultures, more Asian stars will be recognized. ✓ Therefore, globalization together with online platforms have greatly influenced the spread of Asian culture.

✓ However, this is still not an adequate explanation: how is it that Western pop cannot retain its dominance in the East and has let Asian pop slip into the Western market? ✓ Probably attribute to the ambitious attitude of Asian stars? ✓ Asian singers have been diligently producing songs with English lyrics, as well as adding other new elements, which are exotic to Western views and can cater to the taste of people in Western. This might attract them to the Asian cultural zone and bring popularity to the Asian stars or groups. Alongside, as Asian stars are very eager to step into the Western market, they are so industrious, participating in many of the films or shows, doing charity work, as to increase the coverage. They are enthusiastic to fans, never showing an arrogant appearance, that would help gaining favour from audiences and fans. ✓ With the blurring of the line between Eastern and Western cultures, Asian popular culture has taken full advantage of cultural globalisation, breaking into the Western market.

Good SP. Also, the Tone & Register are particular strong here. You truly managed to interact with the readers here. ✓

✓ Although there is a line seemingly between the Eastern and the Western, the creeping Eastern influence can be seen in the growing on line community of Western artists. There is still a long path to pave with for the Asia to reach the hearth of the worldwide culture. ✓ But one thing can be sure: Eastern stars are shining on the stage of the Western! ✓
